

1 to + ing cases

- to go: to is part of the infinitive and go is a verb
- to going: to is part of the previous expression and going is a noun

List of "to + ing" cases

1. be/get used to (something/doing something)
 - I'm used to working late.
 - She's getting used to living in a big city.
2. be/get accustomed to (something/doing something)
 - They are accustomed to dealing with difficult clients.
 - He's getting accustomed to waking up early.
3. look forward to (something/doing something)
 - I look forward to hearing from you soon.
 - We are looking forward to seeing the new movie.
4. object to (something/doing something)
 - Many people object to increasing taxes.
 - He objected to being called a liar.
5. contribute to (something/doing something)
 - Exercise contributes to maintaining good health.
 - Her research contributed to understanding the phenomenon.
6. devote oneself to (something/doing something)

- She has devoted her life to helping others.
 - He devoted his efforts to finishing the project.
7. admit to (something/doing something)
- The suspect admitted to stealing the car.
 - He wouldn't admit to knowing anything about it.
8. confess to (something/doing something)
- She confessed to eating all the cookies.
 - They confessed to breaking the window.
9. committed to (something/doing something)
- The company is committed to improving customer service.
 - He is committed to running the marathon.
10. dedicated to (something/doing something)
- The team is dedicated to providing the best solutions.
 - She is dedicated to practicing her instrument daily.
11. in addition to (something/doing something)
- In addition to writing books, she also teaches.
 - He works full-time in addition to studying.
12. prior to (something/doing something)
- Prior to leaving, please turn off the lights.
 - They reviewed the documents prior to signing the contract.

13. prefer (something) to (something/doing something)

- I prefer reading to watching TV.
- She prefers coffee to drinking tea.

In all these examples, "to" acts as a preposition, and the -ing form is a gerund functioning as a noun object of that preposition.